Order now: $200.00

The Manning Exton Map of Nieuw Amsterdam, the New World Dutch city that became New York City, following a survey made by Jacques Cortelyou, and sent by Director-General Petrus Stuyvesant to the West India Company in Amsterdam on October 6, 1660, with additions concerning persons, places, and events until the year 1699.

The map indicates by name about seventy-five residents, single individuals, and heads of families who lived in Nieuw Amsterdam. The lettering, executed by hand in decorative style, includes such insets as the Hartger's view of Manhattan in 1628, a Native village, a sea monster, and local fauna.
